Goal:

The goal of celebrating International Women's Day was to acknowledge, appreciate, and honor the contributions of women in society and within the academic environment. The event aimed to create awareness about gender equality, encourage respect for women, and recognize the valuable role played by women in shaping families, institutions, and the nation.

Objective: The main objectives of the Celebration were as follows:

1. To celebrate and recognize the achievements and contributions of women in society and the academic community.
2. To promote awareness about women's empowerment, equality, and respect.
3. To express gratitude towards women faculty members and supporting staff for their dedication and hard work.
4. To encourage students to reflect on the importance of women's role in personal and professional life.
5. To create a positive and inclusive environment that values dignity, appreciation, and mutual respect.

About the Event:

Women's day celebration was done at Dept. Of Electronics Engineering (VLSI D&T), CSMSS Chh. Shahu College of Engineering organized by Students Association of VLSI Engineers (SAVE) on 10th March 2026 (Tuesday) on occasion of International Women's Day (08th March 2026).

1. The program began with the welcoming of Respected Head of Dept. Dr. Shrikant H. Honade & all departmental faculty members and supporting staff (Mavshis) by the student organizers, expressing gratitude for their presence.
2. This was followed by Saraswati Pujan and ceremonial lamp lighting, symbolizing knowledge, positivity, and the auspicious beginning of the celebration.
3. A student from SY EE(VLSI D&T) presented a poem dedicated to women, highlighting their strength, resilience, and significant role in society.
4. A felicitation ceremony was organized to honor Mrs. Komal Dandge and Ms. Anjali Ghorpade for their valuable contributions to the department.
5. As a gesture of appreciation and respect, two Mavshis (supporting staff) were also felicitated by the students in recognition of their sincere service and dedication.
6. Two students delivered speeches on the significance of International Women's Day, emphasizing women's empowerment, equality, and respect.

7. The program continued with inspiring words from the Head of Dept. Dr. Shrikant H. Honade Sir and Mrs. Komal Dandge, who shared their thoughts on the importance of valuing and supporting women in society.
8. An interactive game activity was conducted where random participants were selected, and each participant invited a friend to the dais to speak 3–4 lines about Women's Day, making the session engaging and lively.
9. The program concluded with a Vote of Thanks, expressing gratitude to all faculty members, staff, and students who contributed to the successful organization of the event.
10. With this, the International Women's Day celebration concluded successfully, leaving a message of respect, appreciation, and empowerment for women.
